The personality of the candidates plays a much more important part than in any preceding conclave, since the conditions prevailing in the past are now entirely changed. Formerly the Sacred College was divided into several distinct parties. There was, first, that composed of the Cardinals who were members of the great Roman families, nearly every one of which was represented in the College. Thesealways exerted very powerful influence in the election of a Pope. At the present time there is only one scion of a great Roman house among the Cardinals, namely Cardinal Battista Casali Del Drago, who, from the standpoint of the election of a new Pontiff, is relatively unimportant.

> Then there were parties composed of Cardinals appointed by the same Pope, who usually ranged themselves into separate bodies.

In addition to the members of the Sacred College appointed by the Pope who had then just passed away, there were usually a considerable number chosen by his predecessor, and even a few nominated by the Pope preceding their accommodation and protection. him. In consequence of Leo XIII.'s long reign, these parties have entirely disappeared. In the present Conclave there will be only one Cardinal, Cardinal Oreglia, who was not appointed by Pope Leo.

As a result of these changes the approaching conclave will be much more under the influence of individual candidates than in the past, rendering it impossible to forecast the election with any degree of certainty. It is considered highly probable that the new Pope will be a man at present not thought of and not talked about.

servatives, many of the foreign Cardinals and an influential wing of the office was unable to forward the message at once. It left Rome on one Italian section of the Sacred College being imbued with the progressive of the nineteen wires working from that city to Paris about 6 o'clock spirit of the age and likely to battle against the ultra conservatism that local time, or 12 o'clock noon, New York time. has ruled the Church for centuries. The talk of interference from the Catholic powers through the right of veto is not regarded seriously, as it is realized that there is no possibility of a foreigner being elected unless it should be Cardinal Gibbons, and what the powers desire is only that the new Pontiff should conduct the affairs of the Papacy in a manner to avert international strife. This influence will be exerted only indirectly and will be made the most of by the liberal element. Because of it Cardinal Gibbons, representing practically the entire body of English speaking Catholics, through the death of Cardinal Vaughan and the necessary absence of Cardinal Moran, will be one of the most influential members of

VIEWS OF CARDINAL SVAMPA. The Tribuna to-day published an interview with Cardinal Svampa, Archbishop of Bologna, who, the paper says, has quite recovered from his stroke of paralysis. The Cardinal is quoted as saying:

This space is so small that the foot of the casket will extend to the iron trellace. The purpose of this arrangement is to carry out the ancient ceremony by which the actual foot of the dead Pontiff will extend through the iron barriers to permit the kneeling faithful to approach and kiss the last remnant of former Papal authority through it. This morning people crowded about the grating and gazed at the preparations going on within.

A MOST IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY.

The ceremony of officially pronouncing the Pope dead was most impressive. All the cardinals in Rome, numbering twenty-nine, assembled at the Apostolic Palace to view the remains.

Cardinal Oreglia, dean of the Sacred College and Camerlengo of the Holy Roman Church, had to put aside his Cardinal's robes as a sign of deep mourning, and was gowned entirely in violet. The other Cardinals wore crimson robes with violet collars, indicative of mourning.

Within the death chamber the body lay with a white veil over the face on the bed, surrounded by Franciscan penitentiaries, while outside the Noble Guard maintained a solemn vigil. The profound silence was only broken by the chanting of prayers for the dead. Into this solemn presence came the mourning procession of Cardinals, who, kneeling, silently prayed. Then the prelates reverently looked on while Cardinal Oreglia approached the remains.

WHITE VEIL REMOVED.

The white veil was removed from the dead man's face, revealing the cameo-like features of the departed Pope, rendered sharper and more transparent by death. So life-like was the body that those present half the Government authorities to put themselves at the disposal of the cardinals, if they are requested to do so, and to leave nothing undone for expected Leo to raise his hand in the familiar gesture of blessing.

A moment of breathless silence ensued, and then Cardinal Oreglia, taking the aspersorium, sprinkled the late Pontiff with holy water and said in a firm voice: "Gioacchino" (the Christian name of the deceased Holy Father)

When there was no answer the same word was repeated three times, louder and louder, after which, turning to the kneeling Cardinals, the Camerlengo solemnly announced: "Papa vere mortuus est" (the Pope is really dead). As the words were uttered there arose from the kneeling Cardinals a

Following the ceremony of the recognition of the death of the Pope by the Sacred College came another, shorter, but no less significant and symbolic. On Leo's finger was the famous Fisherman's Ring, which the Camerlengo, with a whispered prayer, drew gently off, and which later will be broken in the presence of the Cardinals, reset and presented to the new Fope when he is elected.
